Don't for get that our eastern neighbors are feeding apples to stock with good results, whilst we have only a seasty supply for family use. Also the castern farmers have their barrels of cider and an abundance of the best apple vinegar, and here either is a rarity with the majority of families. And yet we most all cultivate more land than is profitable and have often an abundance of wast and worn out lands that could be made profitable if set in trees, besides improving the condition of the land.

Prospectus of THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLICAN:

Referring to its course in the past as the best index of the spirit which will control its future management, the Republican is encouraged to promise its readers a myrked advancement, in every particular that constitutes a great metropolitan journal, for the year to come. It is with unconcealed gratification we are able to say that within a year and a week after making changes and improvements more extensive than have ever been made by any established and successful paper of the world, it is again compelled to cularge, increasing its size from lorty-eight to fifty-six columns, to meet the increasing volume of news and advertisements. With such signal evidences of vigor and enterprise as may be found in the pages of its files, perfect confidence is assured that no energy will be relaxed to add to the numerous leatures which have already made the Republican pre-eminently the great newspaper of the Mississipt Valey. Arrangements are making and will rapidly be consummated by which it will enjoy increased facilities for the collection of news, and no exertion will be spared by which constant improvement and progress may be exhibited, both in the quality and quantity of the reading matter presented to its partrons.

An extensive increase in its circulation, in exhibited, both in the quality and quantity of the reading matter presented to its patrons.

An extensive increase in its circulation in the face of a stringent money market and spite of the bitter denunciation by the partisan press on necount of the independent course which it has pursued with reference to the great positical questions of the day, encourages its continuance in that course. Cheered by popular approval and animated by the conseausness of right, the Republican will be found, as heretofore, a sturdy advocate of Democratic and Conservative principles, but bound to no party and governed by no dictation from clique or faction. Its independence means freedom and enfranci isement, not alone from parties as now constituted, but from any new ones that the politicians may construct. In brief, the Republican, making for its chief object the dissemination of the news, with intelligent and conscientious comments upon the topics of the day, will heartily advocate those measures which promise the greatest good to the to the body of the people, giving support to all movements, whether political or otherwise, which promise to further their interests, and unlesstatingly opposing such as would put them in beopandy.

The Tri-Weeckly Republican is made upfrom the contents of the baily, and is designed to accommodate readers residing aspoints not reached by daily mails.

The Weekly Republican will be found, as heretofore, a faithful epitome of the weekly news, re-arranged and re-written expressly for that edition. No pains or expense will be spared to make it in every respect as a general news and literary paper the best weekly publication in the country, for which purpose a large amount of matter to be found in no other issue, will be prepared and collected expressly for it each week. Besides special features of a literary and ni-cellaneous character, especially adapting it for the family circle, its well-carned superiority as a NEWS paper will be seruptiously maintained by a continuance of the attention heretofore

TERMS:
THE 'ST. LOUIS REPUBLICAN—Published every moraing, by mail one year $12; club of three $34; of five $55; of ten $100.
THE TRI-WEEKLY—Published Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, $6 a year; three copies $17; five copies $27; ton $60.
